The installation of this software is a simple process that is carried out in just a few clicks. The user interface is friendly and very easy to use. Another interesting feature of BreakTimer is the multiple breaks per day option which allows the user to repeat a break in a single day or each week. The most common schedule is a 3h break, but if there are a few hours that a user does not need to work, it will be possible to change the corresponding settings so that this break is not interrupted. The work break schedule can also be modified to determine the duration of a break to 30 min, 45 min or an hour and the user can customize the remaining time after the break. The schedule can be changed manually or by configuring the program to automatically repeat the same pattern. Besides calculating the breaks, this program allows you to add and list the tasks to carry out during breaks and to include these items in the summary statistics. As a user, you can also define to what extent a task is important or not. The tool can be configured to not allow certain tasks to be interrupted, but even allow all interruptions. The user can choose the day and month of the break to adjust the program to the schedule that fits your working day best. For example, if a break is
