The clinical impact of inducible beta-lactamase expression in Pseudomonas aeruginosa strains in a surgical intensive care unit. We investigated the prevalence of inducible beta-lactamase expression among extended-spectrum beta-lactamase (ESBL) producing Pseudomonas aeruginosa in a general intensive care unit (ICU) in Vietnam. Fifty-four inducible beta-lactamase-producing P. aeruginosa strains were isolated from 57 (26%) patients during the study period. In the ICU, the prevalence of inducible beta-lactamase expression was slightly higher in P. aeruginosa isolated from urine (20/82, 24%) than in P. aeruginosa isolated from clinical specimens (four of the 20, 20%). Higher resistance of P. aeruginosa with inducible beta-lactamase expression to cefotaxime, piperacillin/tazobactam, ceftazidime and imipenem was observed (100%, 100%, 89.5%, and 93.2%, respectively). Also, higher resistance of P. aeruginosa expressing an inducible beta-lactamase to ciprofloxacin, levofloxacin and moxifloxacin was observed (68.9%, 33.3%, and 25%, respectively). The higher frequency of hospitalization and infections complicated by sepsis in infected patients with inducible beta-lactamase expression was also observed ( $p=0.0257$ ). The identification of inducible beta-lactamase expression in clinical P. aeruginosa isolates in our study suggests that the selection of appropriate antibiotic therapy should be interpreted with caution in the presence of inducible beta-lactamase expression, particularly in critically ill patients. New Zealanders are hurting for jobs but the Minister of Labour is still keen to recruit more - despite the fact he once spent 5 hours on the phone talking to an employee of a company that could provide one job for every 10 that he said he was looking for. Last night, Hamish Walker, New Zealand's Minister of Labour, was on the hunt for someone, but not just any someone. You know the type: a job seeker, a job seeker's cupboard friend, a whingey bum, the never-working stay-at-home mother. When I think about your situation, I asked myself why it was that no job offer had come to fruition so far on the 18 follow-up calls, 16 knock on the door interviews, and... I thought my Google was broken... until I looked to the Facebooks, Cringes and Twitters of New Zealand. A survey has found that even in the age of the internet, a high percent of Kiwi have never used a modern computer. If you thought that Kiwis needed all the help in the world to try and access the varied treasures of the world wide web, then you werent alone. Last year, a survey revealed that even with nearly half of New Zealanders saying they had access to the internet, only a quarter actually used the internet.... In recent years, we've seen many changes to enterprise and business applications. It's time for IT organisations to embrace those changes and accelerate their digital transformation. With the release of Windows 10 last year, Microsoft has introduced many new features for IT professionals. However, not all those features will apply to all organisations. Of course, Windows 10 is probably the most significant new release, so it's what people will be talking about – but we want to help you set yourself a new exciting goal for the Windows 10 era. For many organisations, the goal now should be to accelerate their digital transformation. IT professionals

Padres Close To Deal With Giants For Hunter Pence

According to Tom Krasovic of GiantsBlog.com, the San Francisco Giants are "closing in on a trade" with the San Diego Padres for outfielder Hunter Pence. Krasovic says "it would take a few more moves" to finalize the deal and reports that it's "likely to be consummated" on Thursday. "The Giants will pay somewhere in the range of $80 million to $90 million of Pence's current $110 million salary." Krasovic added "They're expected to trade AJ Ellis and John Bowker to the Padres for pitching prospects, and the Giants will also part with Pablo Sandoval." All three players the Padres would be receiving would be under contract for 2014. The Giants still owe the Padres $7 million on Ellis' contract. While Pence has been a solid player for the Giants, he's not the player he once was. He's hitting.266 this year with 17 home runs and 59 RBI. After a strong season in 2012, in which he hit.276 with 24 homers and 85 RBI, Pence has only managed a .267 average with 17 homers and 59 RBI in 191 games this season. The Padres have an offensive-minded team this year and could use another power bat in the lineup, something they've lacked the past few years. Pence is also an excellent defensive center fielder. Pence will have a team option for $15 million in 2015, with a $1 million buyout. With or without Pence, the Padres are expected to use the roster spot on Drew Pomeranz as a starter. For the Giants, they have Josh Osich to be moved, but they'll need to find a team willing to take on his $2.9 million salary. If a deal goes down, I'd imagine Pence would have to accept a lesser role as he continues to decline in his playing career.
